

Personal Statement

My prowess in trading and investing in stock markets along with a formal degree in Bachelor's of Commerce has made me aware of the significance of financial disciplines in the contemporary world. I have been exposed to various fields of commerce which impressed upon me with the importance of financial sector in the economy. With profuse understanding of the seriousness of finance and investment combined with my keen interest for the discipline amalgamated into me to apply for masters in finance and investment at your globally acclaimed university.

Having an academic background in commerce along with in-depth understanding of Indian financial markets with a formal degree by Bombay Stock Exchange in the same equipped me with elemental knowledge of multiple finance-related theories and concepts and considerable understanding of statistics and data analytics. With the means of my internship as Analyst at an esteemed financial institution and learning accumulated through the undergrad program in commerce provided me fundamental tenets of finance and also widened my knowledge of economic principles whilst understanding the management and its connection to finance. I also possess extensive knowledge of mathematical and statistical models which are prerequisites for commerce pupils to analyze financial instruments and financial markets. As the finance industry is expeditiously growing so the requirement of financial elites which drives me to pursue a master's program in finance and investment that the Middlesex University proffers. Earning a master's degree in finance and investment will equip me with theoretical and practical knowledge of corporate and investment and will provide me a better understanding of corporate and entrepreneurial finance. The scrupulous course curriculum will allow me to lay emphasis on risk management, investment and private banking and treasury from a global point of view and will make me familiar with financial modeling, econometrics and quantitative risk management. The course modules for the program at Middlesex University are developed to provide theoretical and practical knowledge of arcane subject matters of finance along with an intensive training in specialized database and software packages for data analytics and financial operations. The university also allows students to draft dissertation on research projects which will undoubtedly widen the horizon of knowledge in the field of my interest and clearly make me stay ahead of the curve which will not only adorn my learning but also unbar abundant opportunities to acquire my ambition. Post to the completion of the program I will have proficiency in portfolio and practice, financial analysis, management and competency in business finance which will pave a patch for me to take up assignments at leading financial institutions as Investment Banker. By viewing the state-of-art facilities and university's links with major financial organizations, I have come to the conclusion that pursuing the master's program in finance and investment is the best way forward to procure my vocational objectives and secure a place as Investment Banker at globally acclaimed financial institutions.